A Picture book with a heart saying our farewells to animals that lost their fame due to human pursuing selfishness and convenience

When the puma stepped out of the door, did he know that it would be his first and last outing? In the fire that engulfed the forest and covered everything with smoke, what kind of prayers did the animal make? What do the four seasons mean to a polar bear tired of the heat?

This picture book would help us listen to many stories of lives that we haven't been aware of and did not pay much attention to. You would say goodbye over and over again after reading their stories that they leave behind, and reflect on living together, the value of life, and living as a human being.
