Written by one of the most famous Korean sing-a-song writers, Lee Jeok.

A story about death of family told from a child's point of view.

Ranked as No.1 in the weekly bestselling picture book and sold over 4,000 copies within one week.

One day, my grandfather passed away.

Everything is normal, except that he is not there with me anymore.

Everything at home and everyone in the neighborhood is same. But there is just one thing different, that there is no longer her grandfather. The feeling of loss is very unfamiliar to her and seeing some keepsakes of him remaining in places is very heart-breaking.

Through repeating the same sentence "My grandfather passed away" on every page, the girl comes to realize, accept the death and finally believes that death doesn't necessarily mean absence only but he's just gone to where he belongs beyond the earth.

Sensitive, comforting, and beautiful story about farewell.

A book for all ages, from child to adult.
